THE TRANS-ATLANTIC BALLOON.—The colossal balloon which has for some time been in course of construction at Hoboken for Mr. T. S. Carlincourt Lowe, for his intended aerial voyage to Europe, was taken to Reservoir square, in New York, on Saturday for inflation. The Commercial Advertiser furnishes the following description of the balloon:

tiser furnishes the following description of the balloon:

"The Air Ship when inflated and in order will resemble an ordinary balloon, with exception of the appendages to the car. The car is a basket or wicker work, six feet in diameter and four feet deep, having an apperture in the bottom, about two feet in diameter, through which to pass to the boat beneath. The cords which attach this car to the balloon pass up to a hoop, some six or eight feet above, and are covered with canvas, so as to make a wall, having windows cut in it. This inclosure is to protect the passengers from the cold. In this car will also be placed a lime stove, and the provisions for the voyage. At a distance of some twenty feet below the car, the boat will be suspended. This is one of Francis' Metalic Life boats, thirty feet long, eight feet beam and four feet deep. In this will be placed the caloric engine and the machinery, consisting of a propeller, rudder, &c.

The balloon itself is one hundred and &c.

The balloon itself is one hundred and The balloon itself is one hundred and sixty-two feet in diameter, and has a capacity for eight hundred and twelve thousand cubic feet of gas. The gas will be supplied from the street mains. It is estimated that the inflation will occupy some twelve days. A high fence has been erected around the square to, prevent 'dead heads' from seeing without paying for the luxury."

It is said that eight persons will probably start in the "City of New York," as the aerial ship is called, on her proposed trans-atlantic trip.

John Wise, the distinguished balloonist, has recently written a letter to the New York Tribune, in which he warmly defends his theory of a regular eastern current of air-at an elevation of three miles. He says: "I first discovered, twenty years ago, that within a three miles elevation, balloons could be directed eastward, deviating from that line, and soon thereatter demonstrated the fact by doing the thing a number of times, once from Carlisle to Lancaster, Pa., twice from New York to Lancaster, Pa., twice from New York to Lancaster, once from Springfield to Columbus, O., once from Bradford, Vt., to Great Falls, N. H.—in all these cases, by premeditation. I had never then read the detailed theory of trade winds, but was simply learned by facts—always good instructors. Since that time Maury has collaborated a system of wind-and-current charts that promise much more for the use of aerial navigation than the most sanguine devotee of the art could have hoped for. Since deducing from his long and studious observations and researches the course of the trade winds, their currents and counter-currents, all the prominent balloon voyages have verified those deductions."

Brown NOT TO BE IMMEDIATELY EXE-

the apparent combustion is terrine. Old Brown, with his score of followers, has set the entire commonwealth in commotion, and arrested the gaze of the world. The same number of men, with the same means anywhere else, might have been suppressed by the ordinary police of a village. In a slave community they require the interposition of Governors, Presidents, marines, millita and mobs. The fancied danger transcends the real danger. A spectre always stalks behind the incendiary, of enormous and shadowy preportions; not one spectre only, but a troop of spectres: such a caravan as Freiligrath describes in his poem to twirl into fearful shapes, and legions of dusky warriors come pressing onward in terrible array. The pilgrim trembles, and the very camels and horses grow frantic, because they fear the bursting of the Simoon.—N. Y. Post.

Fred. Douglas, having been accused

Simon.—N. I. Post.

(1) Fred. Douglas, having been accused of assisting John Brown in the Harper's Ferry insurrection, denies the charge in a letter to a Rochester paper, and says:

My field of labor for the abolition of slavery has not extended to an attack upon the United States Arsenal. In the teeth of the documents already published, I affirm that no man connected with that insurrection, from its noble and heroic leader down, can connect my name with a single broken promise of any sort whatever. So much I deem it proper to say negatively.

The time for a full statement of what I know, and of all I know, of this desperate but sublimely disinterested effort to emancipate the slaves of Maryland and Virginia from their cruel task-masters, has not yet come, and may never come. In the denial which I have now made, my motive is more a respectful consideration for the opinions of the slaves' friends, than from my fear of being made an accomplice in the general conspiracy against slavery. I am ever ready to write, speak, publish, organize, combine, and even to conspire against slavery, when there is a reasonable hope for success."

The Dollar Mark—The sign S was always a mystery to me, as pupil and teacher. I was taught in youth, and in after years so instructed others, to regard it as a contraction for U. S., the U being written over the S. But age, travel, and reflection have taught me differently. The "dollar" is an old coin, much older than our government, older than the English in America. But it strikes me that it needs a little more unfolding. It is not in Brazil, with mil-reis, but in Spanish America, and in old Spain itself, that we find the true explanation of the cabalistic sign S. The Spanish word for dollar (and from them we adopted the coin and its abreviations) is pess dure, or pess fuerte—"hard dollar." Pesso is the word in general use. And in Spanish accounts this is always contracted by writing an S over a P, and written, as in Portuguese, after the sum. This, I conceive, to be the true explanation of the enigma, as every Spanish scholar knows.

A Child at Play—It is always a most every Spanish scholar knows.

A Child at Play.—It is always a most curious spectacle to watch a child alone at play, and see it contriving pleasures and mimic business for itself. It is marvelous what imagination does for this little poet, who works with words but creates strange visions for itself out of sticks and stones and straws. Dive, if you can, into the urchin's mind, and follow to its source that exclamation of joy and surprise which a mere nothing has called forth. It is a most curious spectacle. But when, at the same time, we call to mind that we ourselves have been just such a charming simpleton, there arises before us one of the most fascinating of day dreams which the grown up man can indulge in. It is veritably a fairy land we are peeping into.

The unrivalled reputation which my Hams have long borne in the California market, renders me exceedingly anxious that no Hams packed by other persons should be mistaken for the well-known and genuine

HORACE BILLINGS' HAMS.

And my present object is to ask consumers, especially to distinguish my Hams from certain other Hams, which I learn have this season been sent to California, on which the name of BILLINGS has been placed, with a label resembling mine in style, type, &c.

My Hams are cured under my own personal supervision; and their admitted excellence is owing to the great care used, and the peculiar preparation they undergo in curing, by which delicacy of flavor, preservation of the juices of the meat, and freedom from under saltness, are secured. I confidently assure purchasers of my Hams in California, that the cure of 1859 will be found of the choicest quality and flavor, and fully equal in all respects to any heretofore packed by me for that market.

VICTORIA, VANCOUVER ISLAND.

Thursday Morning, December 15, 1859.

Officials in the Assembly.

We have before stated that the politics of in which new countries ought to be adapted to their injured. circumstances. That we cannot act wisely in borrowing the usages from older countries that are unsuited to our condition. In applying the doctrine to this colony in view of a general election, we ask, would it be safe and politic to allow officials receiving emoluments to be elected? Certainly not. Viewing it from every point, we are forced the conclusion that the rights of the people would thereby be jeopardized,-and the ple would thereby be jeopardized,—and the independence of the Assembly is the duty of every elector. To secure that state of things no dependant on our government should be returned. This doctrine may be at variance with the usages of Great Britain, or older British colonies; but our circumstances demand its enforcement here. In the House of Commons, composed of six hundred members, the heads of departments are allowed to sit after reelection. But then ten or fifteen ministers are nothing in comparison with the number of independent members. So there is are nothing in comparison with the number of independent members. So there is little or no danger to the purity or independence of the Commons. In provincial Assemblies, having fifty or seventy-five members, five or six officials cannot jeopardize the independence of the House. Here, how ever, we have only thirteen members to elect. Three or four paid officials, with three or four more non-official members may unite, and by that means violate, for their own aggradizement, the trust reposed in them by their constituents. Hence before we know it, large debts may be contracted, and large salaries voted away. Honest officials would not use power for so corrupt an end. But it is wise and safe that our constitutional system should embrace such a series of checks and balances, as will act as an entire preventive against any such occurrences. Temptation should not be laid in the way. Constitutional guards should surround the representatives of the people. For sach we contend, in relation to the constitution of the Assembly. Our aspiring officials may be as honest as elsewhere. Let it be remembered, however, that here they have sought office, not for the honor, as in leading the proposal of the fundamental principles of our government, and the genius of our institution of the Assembly. Our aspiring officials may be as honest as elsewhere. Let it be remembered, however, that here they have sought office, not for the honor, as in leading the proposal of the fundamental pri independence of the Assembly endangered. To insist on the purity and independence of remembered, however, that here they have sought office, not for the honor, as in England and older colonies; but for the empluments. The support of themselves, their families, and a competence to retire on, is presented as urgently to their attention as to private citizens; but with this difference, that their dependance is on the public treasury. Place them in the Assembly, and it is unreasonable to suppose that they will lose sight of "number one." The eagerness with which the "loaves and fishes" are sought, is evidenced by two official candidates. One was sent out with an Attorney-generalship of British Columbia. That, however, was insufficient to satisfy his cu-pidity or ambition. Hence a deserving and gentlemanly official must be crowded out of office in order to place the responsibilities of his office on the shoulders, and a large prospective salary in the pockets, of this official aspirant for legislative honors. Thus he holds two Attorney-generalships in two neighboring colonies,—no matter how pre-judicial to the interests of the colony for which he received the first appointment,nor to what extent it is at variance with the views of the Colonial Office. Can men who prove unfaithful to one colony, where sensible legislation is so much needed, be trusted with the public purse here, when such hankering for office is visible? Were the electors overgrown children, one might suppose their inexperience would make them liable to be bamboozled into electing such men. Fortunately the electors are men of sense and experience, and we have no doubt that they will cast their votes only for men who are entirely distinct from office. The other candidate is the Treasurer. He holds some four or more offices relating to two Colonies. He is doubtless a good public servant. But the question with the people is not how good this or that official may be; but is it right to allow paid officials to have an opportunity of surrounding themselves with a petty majority, and vote the public money as they please? Thorough business men do business with honest men on the same principle that they do with those of whose honesty they are doubtful. They protect themselves against loss by reasonable securities. In dealing with pubreasonable securities. In dealing with public affairs our policy should be the same. Give the people security against loss. In this small Colony, with an Assembly of thirtoen members, the best security the electors can have that the purse-strings will not be too loose, will be found in keeping paid officials out of the Assembly.

Washington Territory.

Steamer Eliza Anderson arrived on Tues day afternoon from Puget Sound, with late papers from Olympia.

We understand that printing materials for a newspaper were landed at Port Townsend from the Northerner, on Monday last.

The Pioneer and Democrat notices the occurrence of a soldier row at Vancouver in which the keeper of saloon was seriously

A stabbing affray, not fatal, took place over a game of billiards, at Olympia, on the

The Seventh Session of the Territorial Legislature convened at Olympia on Monday, 5th From Governor Gholson's Message inst. we extract the following in relation to the San Juan affair:

For a brief space, "a speck of war" hung, metoer like, upon our northern border; but thanks be to wise heads and human hearts, it is now below the horizon, and 'tis hoped made in reference to the occupancy of the Island, the Territorial officers there, were urged to respect the rights of British subjects, and the course thought proper, in case of a violation of our laws by the latter, suggested and its adoption advised. Relying upon the well-known intelligence of our officials there, both military and civil, it is hoped no collision growing out of the

That under any fair construction of the treaty, the Island is curs, is regarded as beyond a doubt. Hence no fears of its final surrender are entertained.

Whether any legislation is necessary for the preservation of peace, and to uphold the integrity of the Territory, pending the joint occupancy, is respectfully submitted to your superior wisdom.

The Pioneer and Democrat continues in high dudgeon at Gen. Scott for his course in relation to San Juan Island, and talks furiously of the humiliating predicament in which the old hero has placed Gen. Harney and the whole fillibustering army of the United States of Washington Territory. This is what might be expected from one of the "hifalutin" "spread-eagle" chivalry to which he belongs. Conservatism of any sort is reg-ular rats-bane to the "54-40-or-fight" style of people, and as our neighbors were valorously re-enacting that old farce,-to be suddenly checked in their sport, was naturally dis-tasteful to their feelings. But we insist that the humiliation which our cotemporary and his military friends now suffer, is the legitimate consequence of their own rash and law-less conduct in the matter. Those who unauthorizedly rush into a bad speculation can only blame themselves for the humiliation of failure. To go "up in a balloon" and "come down like a thousand of bricks," are incidents that frequently happen to the "fast' people of this fast age.

But in any case our cotemporary's censure of Gen. Scott is unwarrantable; for that distinguished officer's authority in the matter was not supreme, but his action was planned and directed by the administration at Washington,—that administration which it helped to establish, and upon which it is now a pensioner. We trust, for his own now a pensioner. We trust, for his own sake the fillibuster editor of the Pioneer will restrain his wrath against Gen. Scott, before the world of Washington Territory discovers that his animosity is less owing to his love for San Juan Island than to the signal snubbing he is reported to have received from the old hero during his late visit to that region.

Thos. E. Gray, Esq., will deliver a lecture this evening at the Royal Hotel. Subject-the claims of the study of natural science upon the student.

FALSE.—The Gazette of yesterday says that the letter published in the Colonist some short time ago, purporting to come from miners who were left at Fort Simpson by the Labouchere, is a fabrication. This is entirely untrue. Mr. Crowther, to whom it was addressed, can be found on Yates street. It was brought to us by a gentleman of high standing, who felt indignant that such acts were permitted among Englishmen. If any one therefore wishes to know who placed the letter in our hands, they may learn on requesting the information. We look on the article in question as put forth by a certain candidate for political purposes, and merits therefore contempt.

The Gazette expresses ironical sympathy in regard to our not getting a copy of His Excellency's speech, and recommends the employment of a qualified reporter, as "Government clerks" cannot furnish newspapers with copy. Our reporter asked the privilege of copying it, but was denied the privilege; therefore we view the transaction as a very shabby one, and one unworthy of officials in a country having representative institutions. In all other Colonies the press are placed in possession of such documents Our refusal of a copy may in some measure be attributed to ignorance of Colonial usages, of which none have a greater stock on hand OBJECTIONS .- Quite a number of voters were objected to yesterday, by the obstructives. They were based entirely on the fact that they had independently refused to pledge themselves for certain candidates.

tention to his friendly than his clerical visits Altogether, we can venture to say, religion does not prosper in such a community, for she is not to be reared up in ease and afflu-As well think of rearing the young sapling oak into a stately and tough tree in a warm hot-nouse. No, the oak must en-counter the storms of winter and the heat of summer—the rain and the sunshine—other-wise it will fail to be the hardy tree, which is the pride of all true English hearts.

There is an old adage that "habit be comes a second nature." And we have had an attempt to thrust a State Church on this young and poor community, which has, in some measure, so far succeeded. It will be remembered that a short time ago, a letter was addressed, by the Rev. Mr. Cridge, to the House of Assembly, as to the continu-ance of his engagement with the colony, which was sent back to His Excellency, the Governor, as the Assembly did not wish to take the responsibility of dealing with the matter. Within the last two or three days, His Excellency has thought fit to deal with the matter by ordering the payment of six months' stipend to Mr. Cridge, thus beginning a fresh engagement with him as Colo-Chaplain. It, therefore, behooves every man in the community who is true to himself, to rise up with one voice and cry down this evil, by protesting in the most unqualified manner, against such charges being placed to the debit of the Colonial Exchequer.

It is useless to sit down supinely and treat this with indifference. The greater portion of the evils under which we have suffered in this Colony have been through not speaking our sentiments truly and with unmistakable audibility. Why should not public meetings be held to express indignation when any such unpopular measures are pushed down the throats of the public?
Why should not a protest be drawn up signed and transmitted to the home govern-ment—when the exchequer is burdened by unnecessary expenditure? Were such course pursued in all instances, we should have no fear of the Hudson Bay Company getting the consent of the Home government to pass enormous accounts of expen-diture, as they would by the means pointed out be forestalled in information and at once indignantly reject them. But such pro-testations would have another effect. They would tend to show our rulers that it would be wiser policy to consult public opinion and act up to that opinion in all respects Had such a case occurred in England, of a measure being sent back from the Commons without their assent, we venture to say that even Queen Victoria herself would not have stretched her prerogative so far. But would have made the payment out of But would have made the payment out of her own private purse, if necessary and unavoidable. And does not our English feelings in this portion of the globs tell me of British rights and of the inalienable prilege of speaking freely; and independently maintaining these rights against al linvasion, be the invader who he may.

The Truth Doth Never Die.

Though kingdoms, states, and empires fall,
And dynasties decay;
Though cities crumble into dust,
And nations die away;
Though gorgeous towers and palaces
In heaps of rains lie,
Which once were proudest of the proud—
The Truth doth never die!
We'll mourn not o'er the silent past,
Its glories are not fled;
Although its men of high renown
Be numbered with the dead.
We'll grieve not o'er what earth has lost,
It cannot claim a sigh;
For the wrong alone hath perished—
The Truth doth never die!
All of the past is living still—

The Truth doth never die!
All of the past is living still—
All that is good and true;
The rest hath perished, and it did
Deserve to perish, too!
The world rolls ever round and round,
*And time rolls ever by;
And the wrong is ever rooted up—
But the Truth doth never die!

A Weathergram.

The weather is cold,
But if the truth may be told,
The ladies most gallantly bear it;
To stand in the street
Is indeed quite a treat—
They have "nothing to wear"—and they wear it.

Is indeed quite a treat—
They have "nothing to wear"—and they wear it.

Story of a Female Smuggler.—Recently, an elegantly dressed lady, wearing a fashionable bonnet, costly veil, flowing pelisse and silk dress, distended by an ample quantity of crinoline, presented herself at one of the custom-houses on the Belgian frontier, carrying in her arms a bouncing child, carefully wrapped up in fine linen and rich lace, his dear little features being protected by a thick, green veil. As the lady entered the office, she whispered, informing the agent that her child was asleep, and begged that it might not be disturbed. The skeptical official bowed with native French politeness, but, nevertheless, requested the elegant stranger to accompany a female employee of the bureau into a private room. There was no need, however, of an excess of courtesy. No sooner was the employee summoned than she snatched the infant from the mother's arms, and let it fall heavily upon the floor. In the hand-some stranger she had recognized a professional smuggler, and the interesting child was nothing more nor less than a roll of tobacco, weighing over thirty pounds. As for the ample crinoline, of which some suspicions also were naturally entertained, it was found upon examination to conceal several pounds of tobacco, rolled up into twists, and introduced as hoops.

Bad Plans.—It is a bad plan to sleep in the day time; it trevents refreshing sleep.

BAD PLANS.—It is a bad plan to sleep in the day time; it prevents refreshing sleep at night.

It is a bad plan to eat "to make even."

It is a bad plan to spit, or blow your nose
on the sidewalk; it nauseates the passer-by,
and may cause a broken limb.

It is a bad plan to run away from trouble;

"face the music" bravely, and it will be largely shorn of its tall proportions.

It is a bad plan to eat when you are not hungry, for thereby you waste food and bring suffering to yourself.

It is a bad plan to be always taking medicine; such persons are never well.

It is a bad plan for unprofessional common people to read medical books; it first befogs and then befools.

It is a bad plan to begin the day in a fret, for it will be a day of happiness lost.

It is a bad plan to consult divers doctors at one time.

It is a bad plan to ride when you could just as well walk.

Dr. Johnson was once asked how it We Dr. Johnson was once asked how it was that the Christian fathers, and the men of other times, could find leisure to fill so many folios with the productions of their pens. "Nothing is easier," said he, and he at once began a calculation to show what would be the effect in the ordinary term of a man's life, if he wrote only one octavo page in a day; and the question was solved. The result in thirty or forty years would account for all that Jerome, or Chrysostom, or Augustine, that Luther, Calvin or Baxter has done. has done.

POETRY.—As long as the stars appear nightly in the firmament, and golden clouds gather around the departing sun; as long as we can greet the innocent smile of infancy and the gentle eye of woman; as long as this earth is visited by visions of glory and dreams of love, and hopes of hoaven; while life is encircled by mystery, brightened by affection, and solemnized by death, so long will the poetical spirit be abroad, with its fervent aspirations and deep spells of enchantment.

A sleepy deacon, who sometimes engaged in popular games, hearing the minister use the words "shuffle off this mortal coil," started up, rubbed his eyes, and exclaimed—" Hold on, it's my deal!"

A photographic artist advertises, in a Cicinnati paper, the fact that he is prepared to take likenesses of every style for twenty-five cents. We heard of a pick-pocket taking one the other day for nothing.

A Chicago paper announces the last night of Mr. Anderson, the tragedian. This will be sad news to the friends and admirers of that gentleman. Wonder what was the matter with him.

Fit is now generally admitted by the literary world that old Osawatomie Brown aided Thackeray in finishing the Virginians.
